Pilot Shares Flying Stories that Soar to New Heights!

Bird's Eye View from a Regional Pilots' Perspective

LOUISVILLE, KY, November 1, 2013 - Reach for this information-packed, quick read as regional pilot, Tom Lee, describes the many things, from serious to sublime, that can happen... all in a day's work of flying.

See what it is like when your home is a hotel room as Tom details living all over the world for 200 days a year – green slime and bullet holes optional!

Feel the emotion involved in a flight emergency when there is unexpected engine trouble or equipment fails to work properly.

And relive with Tom events involving pilots, passengers, airlines and others that are strange and odd, just a little bit funny or just “plane” crazy – like what to do with a turtle on the runway!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR:

THOMAS (Tom) LEE currently flies for Express Jet Airlines as a line captain. His professional resume includes a career in the United States Marine Corps, general and commercial aviation professional pilot and published author.

Tom resides in Louisville, KY and has been married for twenty years to Karen, also a pilot. They have two adult children, Jordan and Walker, several dogs, horses and a small farm that keeps them quite busy when they are not flying or traveling.
